Dayton

A word about our "AIR CITY" . . . . The town of Dayton, at the confluence of four shallow streams, was first surveyed in 1795. In the spring of the following year, a small group of settlers arrived and named the town in honor of General Jonathan Dayton.

The original settlement of half a square mile has today developed to over 1700 square miles and the 22 men, women and children now are represented by a population of over 800, 000.

Dayton is the home of the Wright Brothers, co-inventors of the powered airplane, and has become the world mecca for those interested in aeronautical research and experimental work. The nerve center of Air Force research and procurement is at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. And from the James M. Cox Municipal Airport, there are 68 daily commercial flights.

Dayton is the world leader in production of many commodities and an international center of precision industry. Industrial development in the city has been fostered throughout the years and today its 800 plants distribute over 1, 000 products that last year had a total value of over $1, 000, 000, 000.

Dayton is a city of education, culture, welfare and recreation. And it has its sights set high as it looks toward the future and continues to grow. This is the Dayton Story.

Sound Footing In Hobby

Anouncement of the merger of three well known coin firms into the Paramount International Coin Corporation as the surviving business enterprise in a transaction involving nearly a million dollars marks another milestone in the coin collecting hobby. It will be recalled that Paramount was the first coin dealership to be approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission for the sale of its shares to the public in all states.

World Numismatiques, Inc., has meant James F. Kelly to collectors everywhere for many years just as Empire Coin Company, Inc., has meant Q. David Bowers and James F. Ruddy for the past eight years. Both trade names now will become operating divisions of Paramount.

The individual officers of the enlarged, publicly-owned corporation will include all of the principal officers of the three firms so that none of the great numismatic experience and knowledge of these several individuals will be lost to the hobby . . . but rather, through their pooled efforts, it is highly likely that coin collecting will greatly benefit.

It is expected that even more important contributions to numismatic scholarship will be forthcoming from the Paramount personnel as the intensive work of conducting a successful commercial numismatic enterprise is prorated among the staff.

To bring about a merger of such magnitude requires vision, financial resources and certainly a great sense of confidence in the future of the business aspects of coin collecting. After all, without dealers able to develop sources of coins, there would be little sense in attempting to develop a coin collection. Likewise, without collectors, no coin business can survive whether a dealership or a publishing enterprise.

We believe the formation of the enlarged Paramount International Coin Corporation adds stature and stability at a time when many doubts have been expressed as to the future of any type of business which is coin-related!

MORGAN DOLLARS

THE EXTREMELY RARE 1893 S MINT

556. 1893 S Mint, CHOICE BRILLIANT UNCIRCULATED, sharply struck. In short, a great rarity in gem condition.

We have seen many so-called Uncirculated specimens and a few that would qualify for this grading. However, in thirty years in the coin business, we have never seen a coin that would surpass this specimen, and very few that would equal it. It is, indeed, a great rarity in gem condition.

Last year an Uncirculated specimen sold in the California Sale at $5,200.00. This was supposedly a superb specimen but certainly no better, if as fine, as the coin being offered here.

This one should certainly bring over $5,000.00

557. 1894 Sharp Uncirculated. Scarce in any condition, particularly so when choice. Valued at $175.00

558. 1894 O Mint, Br. Unc. $25.00

559. 1894 S Mint, Br. Unc. Considerable proof surface; should bring well over $50.00

1895 PROOF SILVER DOLLAR

560. 1895 Proof, lightly and beautifully toned. A gem specimen. Usually considered the rarest of the Morgan Dollars. We know of two recent sales of less desirable specimens at $4,500.00. This gem should bring, and is worth, $5,000.00

561. 1895 O Mint, Unc., sharp, with nearly full mint lustre. Bringing close to catalogue value of $165.00

562. 1895 S Mint, Sharp Br. Unc. Catalogues at $550.00 but recent sales records slightly lower at around $400.00.

563. 1896-97-98 Br. Unc. 3 pcs, $12.50

564. 1896 O Mint, Choice Br. Unc. Undervalued in choice condition, worth $30.00

FIVE CENTS SILVER

THE RARE 1921 5¢ SILVER

679. 1921 5¢ Silver, About Uncirculated, nearly full mint lustre. The finest specimen of this rarity that I have ever had the privilege to handle. Records show that slightly over two-and-a-half million were struck when it was decided to use the larger nickel coin for this denomination. The silver pieces were melted down and the only ones to survive were a few which collectors and visitors to the mint purchased as part of complete sets during the year 1921. There are less than one hundred specimens known.
This coin is conservatively valued at - $3,500.00
